

6 P.M., Monday, March 13, 2017

Goodman Community Center, Bolz A
149 Waubesa St., Madison, WI

"Humanities in Community" Series:

*Vietnam's
Red Junglefowl*

flickr.com/photos/avianphotos

By photo & story explore these rare chickens with Professor Mark Berres, UW-Madison

These free, public lectures continue monthly -- 2nd Mondays -- during Spring-Fall semesters. Suggest topics to Joseph Lynch, Ph.D., Madison College Philosophy Dept.: LynchJoseph38@gmail.com

Vietnam's

Red Junglefowl

DR. MARK BERRERES (UW-MADISON) TRAVELED TO VIETNAM to study Red Junglefowl, one of the few remaining, identifiable wild ancestors of the not-so-ordinary domestic chicken.

He will discuss his hopes of discovering genetic information that will help maintain and improve current and future agricultural diversity in modern poultry breeds.

Enjoy photos and stories from the trips to Vietnam where climate, terrain, culture, and especially the wiliness of the Red Junglefowl all contributed to the challenges and the rewards of true field work.

